Report on the Utilization of the One-off Grant for Promotion of Self-directed Language Learning (English Language)

Part 1: Progress

The Grant has been used to make subscriptions to three online platforms in the school year of 2025-2026, which will be launched in the school year of 2026-2027.

- The first platform is provided by Sophos Educational Solutions Limited, with MrEnglish containing English learning resources aligned to the junior-form English curriculum at school and DSE English containing DSE learning resources. The platform facilitates progressive development of reading, writing, listening and speaking; some exercises on the platform are supported by automated marking and evaluation generated from the use of artificial intelligence.
- The second platform is provided by Mobut, a marking platform for both teachers and students to enhance English writing skills. Students are allowed to upload their compositions to get feedback on how to enrich the use of language and idea development.
- The third platform is provided by iLearner, a online reading program that allows students to read a variety of texts, which is considered part of the extensive English reading scheme at school. On iLearner, students expose themselves to comics, news articles, reports, short dialogues, blog entries, etc. Such a variety provides them with an authentic context for learning the language.
- Further opportunities will be explored to continuously look for more suitable and useful resources for students.
